

Thessaloniki Greece to Safranbolu Turkey

Written by Administrator

Friday, 02 October 2009 09:20 - Last Updated Saturday, 03 October 2009 14:22

After some further beach side organisation and much help from all the family our parcel of documentation and missing phone was sent to DHL depot. With some level of confidence we decided that we could afford a detour into the mountains before our rendezvous on Monday.

Thessaloniki Greece to Safranbolu Turkey

Written by Administrator

Friday, 02 October 2009 09:20 - Last Updated Saturday, 03 October 2009 14:22

Thessaloniki Greece to Safranbolu Turkey

Written by Administrator

Friday, 02 October 2009 09:20 - Last Updated Saturday, 03 October 2009 14:22

Thessaloniki Greece to Safranbolu Turkey

Written by Administrator

Friday, 02 October 2009 09:20 - Last Updated Saturday, 03 October 2009 14:22

Thessaloniki Greece to Safranbolu Turkey

Written by Administrator

Friday, 02 October 2009 09:20 - Last Updated Saturday, 03 October 2009 14:22

When we started to plan this trip, we were very nervous about the language barrier. But we found that the people in the market were very friendly and helpful. They spoke English and we were able to communicate with them. We also found that the market was very clean and well-maintained. The stalls were organized and the goods were displayed in a neat and attractive way. We were very impressed with the market and we would definitely recommend it to anyone who is interested in shopping in a traditional market.

Thessaloniki Greece to Safranbolu Turkey

Written by Administrator

Friday, 02 October 2009 09:20 - Last Updated Saturday, 03 October 2009 14:22

