First week somewhere other than home and we have been collecting borders - 8 in total. France, Belgium, back into France, Belgium again, Luxembourg for a blink, then Germany, Switzerland and finally France, where we decided to stand still for a while. All of which we hardly noticed save for a change in road signs so say that we had crossed into a completely separate culture, legal system and often language. The only border to offer any resistance was Switzerland, where being Switzerland we were asked to pay our way, ostensibly to use the road system for the 4 hours we spent in the country.
